Killion.

The death angel visited the home of Mr. A. L. Killion, Christmas night. and claimed for its victim the father. who had been ill one year with heart asthma. He was born in Fernessee but had spent the greater part of his life ist Garrard county where he was well known, and all knew him to be an upright, honest man.

He leaves nine children to mourn his loss as a kind and loving father. His recovery was much hoped for but not expected. Tis sad to think his last wishes could not be filled, which were to see his son, Ashford Killion, who is in France in service having colleted June 24th, and his parting words were to be a good boy and try to do right. He was often heard to pray that he could leave this world for a better home and tint he was ready to go, theonly thing that grieved him was his children that were left behind, but he left cheering words to his children that should give them no cause to worry. He was kind and patient during his suffering. and will be greatly missed in his home where neither father nor mother now

His remains were laid to rest in the Buckeye cemetery to await the judgment call.

A voice we loved is still,

A place is vacant in our home. Which never can be filled."

The Condition Of Russia.

What few glimpses we get through Western peoples, show us a scene of utter confusion. They reveal a nation tossed in revolution, all its or-derly life at an end. It is a mighty people given over to cold, starvation, cruel military dominion.

In Eastern Russia there is scarcely food or clothing to be had at any price. Siberia is better off for food, but its transportation is impossible, as the trans-Siberian railroad has been worn and neglected to such an extent that it is well nigh useless. At the time of the Russian revolution the country was not ripe democracy. A true democracy implies the ability for self-government, and that the illiterate hordes of Russervice in my Millinery business this sia had had no opportunity to gain. There was no available halting-place between autocracy and red anarchy.

The Allies will not be doing their duty unless they take some measures for belping Russia to food and fuel, to an opportunity for general educa-tion and to a settled government.

A Useless Branch.

When we go to purchase a pound of butter and we feel like we are barcording to the amount of coin we are called upon to part with to secure it, we must not blame the farmer. is the innocent party in the affairs and his, on the whole, is the smallest profit in the transaction. We must not blame the retailer because he is not more guilty than the farmer: he must dispense with his merchandise in a manner to net him some small gain or like any enterprising business man he feels that he will soon have to close doors. The man whom we do want to account for the great sustainance in prices in food stuffs, triply, before the war, during the war and after the wer, is the middle man.

Of what need is this middleman, anyway? What work does he do to earn his living? The farmer raises the produce, the retailer pays his help to sell it to you, you pay for the right to consume it and all the while the man who does no work, who reaps the greatest revenue, is smiling with his hands clasped behind his comaflounge desk.

It would be very nearly impossible to find such an individual existing in any progressing firm. He would be useless and an unpayable proposition in any branch of the business world. Men are daily losing their positions because they cannot do the work they are called upon to do, properly. And yet, there are thousands of these fake business statuettes decorating the country and being paid for it, too.
